

The Rt. Hon Justin Trudeau, P.C., M.P.,
Prime Minister of Canada
House of Commons
Ottawa, ON, K1A 0A6

Dear Prime Minister:

On balance I thought there were quite few admirable aspects to your first budget.

There was one point, however, that distressed me greatly. You plan to borrow the shortfall, and increase our federal debt by about $100 billion during your four year mandate. You don't need to borrow that money when the federal parliament has 100 % power over money and banking in Canada. You can get all the money you need through the Bank of Canada as we did from 1939 to 1974 with such great success.

You are probably aware of the plan entitled "A New Social Contract Between the Government and People of Canada." I urge you to adopt that plan, and now, so that we will have the benefit from the rapid growth that will result. I also urge you not to adopt the CETA agreement (or the TPP for that matter) on Oct 27th.

Please don't disappoint us.

Yours sincerely,

Minister of Finance.

Dear Minister:

Your first budget was probably as good as you could get within the accepted rules. But there is still much more to do, and the rules can be changed at any time because the parliament of Canada has 100% control over these matters.

You could more than double the positive impact by adopting the plan known as "A New Social Contract Between the Government and People of Canada" that was written by 40 very concerned Canadians. It involves the active assistance of the Bank of Canada similar to the system we had in effect from 1939 to 1974, that proved to be so successful.

And when you reply, don't tell me that to adopt this plan would be inflationary. It isn't so, and certainly isn't necessary! I understand that during our Golden years Canada's inflation rate was comparable to the average for 15 OECD countries. And we can do better now when we know that much of the inflation we had was cost push, and had nothing to do with the use of government created money.

So please don't let us down.

Yours sincerely

Dear _____,

I have written to the Prime Minister and Finance Minister Morneau urging them to introduce a Supplementary Budget to implement the plan known as "A New Social Contract Between the Government and People of Canada" which would more than double all of the benefits of their first budget.

So have a word, or drop a note to the PM and the Minister of Finance asking them to bring in a supplementary budget immediately in the interests of all Canadians.

Your kind cooperation will be very much appreciated.

Yours sincerely,
